Handwritten text in Urdu script, likely a religious or philosophical treatise. The text is written in a cursive style and is densely packed across the page. It appears to be a continuation of a discourse, possibly related to the themes of the provided text (e.g., the nature of the soul, the path to God, or the consequences of sin). The text is written in a single column, with some lines starting with a small 'و' (and) or 'ف' (for), indicating it is part of a larger narrative or argument.

Sun, moon, star.

Sun:

As the light of God,
As the light of the Son,
As eternal light.

Sun:

As celestial glory,
As the Father's love,
As His Power.

Sun:

As His spirit,
As divine illumination to the human mind,
As His gifts to man,
Which make humble men godly.

Moon:

Beneath the sun,
Illuminated by the sun,
Lesser light to the sun.

Moon:

As terrestrial glory,
As the lesser kingdom chosen.

Star:

Beneath the moon,
Lesser light to the moon.

Star:

As the least of kingdoms chosen.
In the end, the stars will fall.
In the end, all men will take their places,
The godly with God,
Ever increasing,
The terrestrial with the terrestrial,
The telestial with the telestial,
The evil ones will sink into the realm of darkness,
Black and fallen as quenched stars,
Ever diminishing.

 meaning & are therefore not asemic. just because this magazine is called “asemic” doesn’t mean everything in it has to be asemic!
